Ex-Sunday-school teacher. Police say alleged incidents took place within the last two years; accused man's wife says her husband is innocent

The wife of a former Sunday-school teacher charged with sex- and weapons-related crimes vows to stick by her man.

Joyce Laframboise said she is shocked and had no idea anything was amiss until police put her husband Paul, 73, in handcuffs and charged him with offences including sexual assault, invitation to sexual touching, sexual interference, sexual exploitation, uttering threats, and a variety of weapons offences.

"I wasn't expecting all this. They are trying to get him," she said, referring to media who had set up outside her home. "My husband is a good man, as far as I'm concerned. He has never hurt me and he never would."

Police said an investigation began when a complainant alleged past sexual abuse. Over the course of the investigation, it has become evident that there are a number of alleged victims involved, according to police.

Laframboise was arrested on Friday. He appeared in court on Monday and was remanded into custody until Wednesday as additional charges were expected.

Joyce said that after 52 years of marriage, a woman knows her husband fairly well, and that Paul is a moral person.

"I've never doubted my husband," she said. "I'll love him and I'll be with him no matter what."

Laframboise was a Sunday school teacher. At one time, he was a member of the West Carleton Christian Assembly. No one at the church was available for comment prior to press deadline.

Laframboise and his hand-made bows and arrows have appeared on CTV's Regional Contact and in the Sept. 27 issue of the West Carleton Review EMC. MacLeod joins Tory ranks in demanding return of legislature Nepean-Carleton MPP Lisa MacLeod joined fellow Progressive Conservative caucus members in signing a letter Tuesday demanding Premier Dalton McGuinty recall the legislature.

"There's important work to be done," MacLeod said Tuesday afternoon ahead of a planned press conference outside McGuinty's constituency office. "All the Liberal party seems to be concerned about is who is going to have the next top job in their party."

It's been nine days since McGuinty asked Lt.-Gov. David Onley to prorogue the legislature and announced he will resign as premier after his party hosts a leadership convention, now planned for the last week of January.

On Tuesday, McGuinty also quashed speculation he might run for the federal Liberal leadership.

Prorogation killed legislation on the house agenda and delayed a contempt investigation into Energy Minister Chris Bentley's alleged role in withholding thousands of documents about cancelled power plants.

It also means the opposition can't force an election while the Liberals are in the midst of a leadership race.

"The Liberals know full well that they could have had a leadership race in the summer, they could have had one after the next election. They chose not to. This is their fault. They created this mess," MacLeod said.

Police have to adjust to a world where they're the ones under surveillance, according to the Ottawa Police Association (OPA).

OPA president Matt Skof says his members are becoming more aware of the fact that bystanders can record officers' actions and post later appeared on YouTube.

Skof says one way to ensure the video includes the "right context" is being piloted by Edmonton police right now. The force is testing shoulder-mounted personal cameras that record officers' day-to-day conduct.

"We often get put into a light when the video is not owned by us," Skof said. "(The pilot) just puts it in a much more realistic light as opposed to the last 30 seconds of something."

Skof notes there are still many issues surrounding the concept that need to be explored — privacy issues chief among them, but the associated costs as well.

Skof was speaking in the wake of a decision to dock Ottawa police Const. Jason Bennett eight days' pay for discreditable conduct. Bennett was involved in a January 2011 incident where he punched a man he was arresting several times in the face.

Circus hopes to keep alive 1920s take on entertainment

Classic carnival. The road show leaves town after Oct. 27

For the next four nights, Montreal's Blue Mushroom Sirkus Psyshow will take people on an eerie and magical adventure like no other at Hull's Le Troquet restaurant.

The show mixes vaudevilian characters with sideshow acts to recreate a classic travelling carnival, which most guests may be too young to remember, but won't soon forget.

"It's a very eclectic, 1920s-style circus," said the show's ring mistress, Bonny Giroux, who goes by the stage name BonBon Bombay.

Giroux, originally from Hawkesbury, Ont., formed the group in 2010 with sword-swallower István Betyár and strongman Carl "Mighty Leviticus" Nickerson.

"I want people to see that we're still keeping it alive," said Giroux.

"We want them to be amazed and walk away going, 'That was a trip.'"

Instead of animals and acrobatics, this circus highlights the talents of its characters, from the bald-headed, heavily-tattooed Mighty Leviticus to Buttercup, "the little person with the huge heart."

"I think my favourite part of the show is one of the strongman acts called Levi in Love, because you get to see both sides of the strongman," said Giroux. "You see his soft side, and then you see his strong, wilder side. It's a real crowd-pleaser."

This is the first time the Blue Mushroom Sirkus Psyshow performs in Gatineau. Tickets are still available on Le Troquet's website. The circus leaves town after Oct. 27.

Middle East ripe for Canadian bands, expat artist says

Lazy Lung members, from left, Anthony Sahyoun, Charbel Salem, Allan Chaaraoui and Imad Jawad. Chaaraoui will play a rare solo concert of new material on Friday at Zaphod Beeblebrox. GRAHAM LANKTREE/METRO

Despite last Friday's deadly bombing in Beirut, the Middle East is ripe for Canadian bands looking to tour, says a musician playing here Friday, fresh from stops in Jordan, Dubai, Egypt and Cyprus.

"Surprisingly, they're all really hungry for this sort of stuff," said Allan Chaaraoui, the Ottawa-born lead singer and guitarist of Beirut-based Lazy Lung, of Middle Eastern youth.

"The youth are just deprived aside from the taste they get from YouTube, if they're allowed to get on it," he said. "I've always tried to bring a Canadian sound, that raw rock

'n' roll that has been going on for some time."

Chaaraoui started the band a couple years ago after travelling to Beirut for work. "Cover bands rule the planet in the Middle East. Lebanon is all about electro-dance music. We entered the Rolling Stone battle of the bands in Dubai and kicked the crap out of everybody. We were an exception who started out playing no covers."

On the band's upcoming 2013 album, Sailor's Delight, Chaaraoui said they wrote up-tempo tunes to appeal to the dance crowd. "The music in some of the songs is a little bit more dance-party-oriented," he said. "Everybody here really likes to dance and move."

The album has a lot to do with the fact that Chaaraoui is always travelling, he said. "A sailor's delight could be interpreted that these sailors are out and working and looking forward to coming back to land, say the weekend. This is for the weekend warrior."

Lazy Lung and the American punk outfit the Black Lips, who joined them on tour, had to tone down their shows.

"We want to make the Middle East a viable option for bands," said Chaaraoui.

"As a group, we've been trying to change the perception of violence in Western eyes," he said. "A comparison of what happened in Lebanon is like a battle happening in Arnprior. A lot of people there know about Canadian bands and I act as a cultural ambassador, spreading their music. We're working hard to bring international and local acts from Toronto and other Canadians."

Chaaraoui will play a solo concert of new material at 8 p.m. Friday at Zaphod Beeblebrox. Tickets are $5.

Correctional Service tries to prevent release of cell-death video

Federal prison authorities are going to court to try to stop release of a jailhouse video of a teen who died in her cell.

Their announcement came just after the coroner refused to put a publication ban on the videos of Ashley Smith.

Well-being. Economy OK but Canadians not so much

Canada's economy may well be muddling through, but on a more personal level, Canadians generally are not, a new study of well-being suggests.

The Canadian Well-being Index, led by researchers at the University of Waterloo, shows that quality of life in Canada deteriorated by 24 per cent between the onset of recession in 2008 and 2010.

Canada's main economic indicator, gross domestic product, only declined by about 8.3 per cent over the same period and began to make a turnaround by the end of 2010.

"When Canada's economy was thriving, Canadians only saw modest improvements in their overall quality of life," said Roy Romanow, co-chair of the index's advisory board. "But when the economy faltered, our well-being took a disproportionate step backward." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Syria: It's a matter of life and death

A view of damaged buildings from shelling in Aleppo, Syria, taken Sunday.
MANU BRABO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Aleppo under siege. Survival instincts are being stretched to the limit as rebels and Bashar Assad's regime clash and battle for Syria's largest city

The rumble of engines in the sky immediately set the Aleppo neighbourhood below on edge. Men peeked from shops anxiously at the Syrian warplane circling slowly overhead. Housewives emerged on balconies to gauge whether they were about to be hit. But the kids hanging out on the street were unfazed. One kept dribbling his basketball.

Finally, the jet struck. Engines revving louder, it dove and unleashed a burst of heavy machine-gun fire into a nearby part of the city. It soared back up under a hail of rebel anti-aircraft fire, then swooped back down for a second strafing run.

The women on the balconies broke into tears, fearing for the children in the street. But the boys just pointed at the jet, shouting "God is great" in challenge. "God send you to hell, Bashar," one boy yelled as the jet flew away.

With death lurking around every corner, the survival instincts of Aleppo's population are tested every day as the battle between Syria's rebels and the regime of President Bashar Assad for the country's largest city stretches through its fourth destructive month. Residents in the rebel-held neighbourhoods suffering the war's brunt tell tales of lives filled with fear over the war in their streets, along with an ingenuity and resilience in trying to keep their shattered families going. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Afghanistan. 10 Afghan troops dead after ambush

Taliban insurgents killed 10 Afghan troops in an ambush in western Herat province, police and government officials said Tuesday.

A spokesman for the provincial governor, Muhiudin Noori, said the Afghan troops (which included both soldiers and police) were searching late Monday for a group of insurgents who had earlier set up a roadblock, stopping and seizing passing vehicles, when they were ambushed.

Five policemen, including the district commander and five soldiers, died in the ensuing firefight, Noori said. There were no insurgent casualties, but police later arrested 25 suspects found in the area, he said.

Also Tuesday, an American service member was killed in an insurgent attack in the east, the U.S. military said in a statement. It did not provide further details about the attack. The latest death makes at least 12 American service members killed so far this month and 265 killed so far this year.

The Herat ambush was the bloodiest single incident for Afghan security forces this year in western Afghanistan, an area where the insurgents have been less active than in their strongholds in the east and west. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

iPad Mini priced well above rivals

Orders start Friday.
New tablet 'is not just a shrunken-down iPad,' senior Apple exec says

Apple introduced a smaller iPad on Tuesday as expected, and updated its full-sized one. It also unveiled new Mac computers, including a 13.3-inch version of a MacBook Pro with sharper, "Retina" display.

With a screen measuring 7.9 inches on the diagonal, the iPad Mini is about two-thirds the size of the regular iPad. "You can hold it in one hand," said Philip Schiller, Apple's senior vice-president for worldwide marketing. "It's not just a shrunken-down iPad. It's an entirely new design."

The iPad Mini starts at $329 US, which makes it more expensive than rival seven-inch products — Amazon.com Inc.'s Kindle Fire starts at $159 US, and Google Inc.'s Nexus 7 at $199 US.

Advance orders for the iPad Mini and the new full-sized iPad will begin Friday, and the products will be available Nov. 2. Two weeks later, a version capable of using cellular networks will go on sale. That's a feature the cheaper, seven-inch tablets don't have.

The new full-sized iPad is an update to the third-generation device that went on sale in March. It has a sharper screen and promises a faster processing chip and faster wireless Wi-Fi connectivity. Prices start at $499 US.

• A new thinner and lighter version of the 13.3-inch MacBook Pro, with a sharper display, will start at $1,699 US.

• New iMac computers feature what looks like a super-thin display screen — but Schiller noted "there is an entire computer in here."

• A new Mac Mini starts at $599 US and comes with four gigabytes of RAM.

London. Conrad Black calls BBC interviewer 'British fool'

Former media magnate Conrad Black has given a combative TV interview on the BBC in which he suggested he could resume his seat in the House of Lords.

In an interview with testy exchanges, Black termed the BBC host a fool and talked about "being able to endure a discussion like this without getting up and smashing your face in."

The former media magnate told BBC Two's Newsnight the U.S. charges that sent him to prison for close to three years were "rubbish" and that he had been "persecuted half to death." Black, who returned to his Toronto home this year after being released from a Florida prison also suggested he plans to keep his seat in Britain's House of Lords.

But the chat with Newsnight's Jeremy Paxman soon became heated when the host referred to Black as a convicted criminal and Black responded by calling Paxman a "priggish, gullible, British fool."

Federal food-safety watchdog allows plant to reopen

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency restored the operating licence Tuesday for a southern Alberta meat-packing plant at the centre of a massive recall of tainted beef, and also launched a review of the E. coli crisis that sickened at least 16 people.

But the agency acknowledged that its control over food safety inside the nation's slaughterhouses has its limits: it is still up to companies to honour their own safety plans.

Union officials say XL Foods employees are being summoned for training and suggest production could resume on Monday.

Court turns down Suncor challenge

Suncor Energy has lost another legal round in its plan to randomly test thousands of unionized oilsands workers in Alberta for drugs and alcohol. But the court battle pitting work-site safety against individual privacy rights isn't over.

Earlier this month, the Communications, Energy and Paperworkers union Local 707 won an injunction against a testing policy implemented during the summer. A judge ordered the matter be settled through arbitration. An Alberta Court of Appeal judge ruled Tuesday against a Suncor application for a stay of the injunction.

Figure it out. The average life span lasts about 29,000 days. Might sound like a lot, but that's all you get.

So why would you spend a single one at a Star Trek convention?

tion?

The original Star Trek's Capt. Kirk, William Shatner, had a lucid moment a few years back when he wondered the same thing.

Kingdom Klingon

They're so obsessive that the big event of the two-day fest, which ended Sunday, consisted of setting the record for the largest gathering of people dressed in Star-Trek-themed costume.

which ended Sunday, consisted of setting the record for the largest gathering of people dressed in Star-Trek-themed costume. The previous record of 1,040 nerds in a room was beat, as 1,083 Klingons, Vulcans and Ferengi came together to ... come together.

One couple really came together, exchanging vows as Klingons, the warrior aliens immortalized by Worf in Star Trek: The Next Generation. They spent their honeymoon at the convention, natch. I can't help but wonder what happens the first time Jossie tries to bite Sonnie (they're both Swedish in real life) on the neck (how a Klingon indicates he or she is interested in sex), and Sonnie says "Not tonight dear, jlwuQ (I have a headache)." The fur will fly, no doubt.

Not only did trekkers (the politically correct version of "trekkie") waste two of their 29,000 to pine for a program that went out of production on May 13, 2005, they spent as much as 3,000 British pounds on a ticket.

To be fair, the damn thing is tougher to kill than a Romulan battle cruiser. J.J. Abrams directs the next movie, which documents the further adventures of a reinvented Capt. Kirk, set to open on May 17, 2013, eight years later, almost to the day the series died.

How's that for symmetry? Symmetry is very important when you're a trekkERRRR.

If this keeps up, Star Trek will eventually catch up to its fictional "real time," sometime in the 23rd century. In fact, I'm surprised this has never been a Star Trek episode, as it's right up their alley.

Full disclosure: I used to be a fan, but bailed when the show jumped the shark somewhere between Deep Space Nine and Voyager. But I'd like to think I never thought of Scott Bakula (Star Trek captain No. 1) as "legendary" or the kiss between Capt. Kirk and Lt. Uhura as a milestone in U.S. race relations.

Yes, all the various Star Treks won 31 Emmys. But Frasier won 37 all by itself, and they don't have a Frasier convention every year with 1,000 Jack Russell terriers called Eddie.

At least not yet.

Fish brain lights up to win contest

A first-ever picture of the blood brain barrier in a live animal has won this year's Nikon Small World Competition, which recognizes excellence in photography taken through a microscope.

The blood brain barrier in a live zebra-fish larva was made by Jennifer Peters and Michael Taylor at St. Jude Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

METRO

This image is of blood vessels from the brain of a live zebra-fish larva. Using a fluorescent protein, we labelled the vessels that make up the blood brain barrier. As the colour changes from red to yellow to green to blue, the vessels are going deeper into the brain.

How is this image important in science and art?

This is the first time the entire blood brain barrier has been imaged in a live animal. I believe that new models of the blood brain barrier, such as the zebra fish shown in our image, may lead to new treatments for central-nervous-system diseases that disrupt the BBB: neurodegenerative disorders, brain tumours and strokes, to name a few.

Aesthetically, it's absolutely stunning.

MICHAEL TAYLOR
Biology researcher

Science explained

What's a blood brain barrier?

This defensive barrier is a group of cells that let nutrients and other necessities move between blood vessels and the central nervous system, while keeping bacteria out of the brain's region. METRO

'I was James Bond'

London. Reporter plays 007 for a day, scaling an arena, drinking martinis and scoring a Bond girl

ANTHONY JOHNSTON

Metro World News

As a copy editor, I'm a stickler for, well, everything: words, grammar, facts ... and movie trivia. I know a thing or two about James Bond (his dad was Scottish and he has a drink every 24.3 minutes, for example) but I never pictured myself as 007.

In fact, no one has pictured me as 007. At six-foot-six and close to 275 pounds — counting my bushy beard and hair — I am closer to Jaws in stature and have as much experience with firearms as Moneypenny (none). Despite all this, I took up the mission of Be Bond for a Day to see if I could masquerade as a secret agent.

Cut and shave à la Bond

To be Bond, you have to look the part. So that means a respectable tuxedo — Moss Bros. of King Street, Covent Garden fixed me up — and an all-out makeover. At traditional barbers Murdock London (Liberty department store, Great Marlborough Street, London), they specialize in slick side-parting styles and wet shaves with cut-throat razors.

Prepared, I whip out a photo of Sean Connery in Dr. No — it's the look I want. My barber Alex Glover applies lashings of exfoliating creams and several hot towels to my face before diving into the mossy bush on my cheeks and atop my head.

The result is pure, pomaded Sean. I am now ready to climb a building.

Johnston, Anthony

Licence to Thrill: Anthony Johnston, a.k.a. James Bond, in front of the iconic O2 Arena in London. Inset, Anthony as Daniel Craig taking care of an adversary. NICK CUNARD

Johnston

In The World is Not Enough, 007 lands atop London's O2 arena after falling from an exploding hot-air balloon. Forgetting to bring my exploding hot air balloon, I sign up for the site's latest attraction Up at The O2, a 190-metre open walkway that stretches over the roof.

Attached to a harness, visitors scale the tensile fabric path, which at its steepest has an incline of 30 degrees, and finally rest at the observation deck — 52 meters above ground level. (The equivalent of 27 Sean Connerys and one Nick Nack, stacked up tall.)

Vertigo nearly kicks in. But if you're like Bond and walk with purpose — as fast as you can — at the top you're rewarded with the spectacular skyline of London's Canary Wharf financial district.

You'll also have a good view of your fellow climbers, some of them, ahem, Bond girls.

Despite my tux, they were reluctant to pose with me. But after I donned a Daniel Craig mask, they rushed in, and one bloke even let me shoot him with my fake gun. Skyfall cost millions. All I needed to become a star was a $5 sheet of thin cardboard.

And after this high climb, a stiff drink.

An Evening with Vesper

Ian Fleming coined the phrase "A Martini. Shaken, not stirred" at Duke's Hotel (St. James's Place, London), in the city's Mayfair district. It boasts a sumptuous and refined bar where hedge fund managers and art gallerists — and occasionally a dashing 007 double — sip cocktails well into the night.

No sooner had I arrived at this quaint bar than the head barman Alessandro Palazzi, in his pristine white tuxedo, whisked me to my corner table. After glancing at my own attire, he kindly says to me: "You'll want to have The Vesper."

For novices among you, The Vesper — a powerful concoction of gin, vodka, bitters and Lillet blanche aperitif wine — is regarded as the "true" 007 Martini, as it is mentioned in Ian Fleming's first Bond novel, Casino Royale. Alessandro makes it with three measures of No. 3 Gin (from London-based Berry Bros.), one measure of Potocki Polish vodka, one of Lillet Blanc and two dashes of Angostura bitters, topped off with a slice of orange peel. Alessandro's preparation of the drink before my eyes was tantalizing — the taste, intoxicating. Dry, rough, smooth, potent, invigorating and $27.70 — it had as many qualifiers as it had ingredients.

My lips and mouth had been shaken and stirred.

And finally, the Bond girl

With Vesper flowing through my bloodstream, it was high time I got to work. The mission? Chat up more potential Bond girls. Armed with a feigned ego and innuendo-filled one-liners that would embarrass M, I headed for the aptly (and worryingly) named Dirty Martini (11/12 Russell St., Covent Garden, London).

At first I was blown off and berated, even slapped at by a woman who said, "I'm too dirty for you." Burned, James, burned. Maybe some Bondian pick-up lines would work?

"Hi," I said, smoulderingly, to the fair-skinned girl with delightful auburn hair. She asked if I was American, to which I replied, "No, I'm Irish." (I really should have followed with, "Like Pierce Brosnan!") Then I stood there mute, a case of stage fright. The woman left, forgetting all about me.

Us spies call this "pulling a Lazenby," a.k.a. "dying another day."

The big finale

Like any good Bond movie, this one has an explosive ending. Channelling my inner-Craig, I used one last pick-up line on two fine birds — "Explain this to me," it goes, "How come two gorgeous ladies like yourselves walk in and nobody tells me about it?"

They laughed — the good kind, mind you — and soon, I was chatting up someone who looks curiously similar to Eva Green as Vesper Lynd in Casino Royale. She even sat in my lap.

Was she on a Be a Bond Girl mission herself? That's for my eyes only.

Lohan refutes dad's alcohol allegations

Lindsay Lohan apparently isn't too worried about dad Michael Lohan's hopes to put the troubled actress under a conservatorship, according to Holliscoop.

"No judge would buy it," Lohan reportedly told friends. "[The judge] would have a hard time believing the claims of someone who was investigated for insider trading, arrested for domestic violence multiple times, arrested for assault, has a drunk driving arrest and has been in and out of jail and prison for years." Lohan also insists that emails her dad provided to TMZ showing that her management team agrees that she's fallen off the wagon are all fabricated.

Michael, meanwhile, claims that his daughter is drinking up to a "bottle and a half" of vodka per day and using cocaine again.

Meth and paranoia — Fergie talks about sobering up

A paranoia-filled visit to church one day was what it took for Fergie to clean up and quit using drugs, she tells Oprah Winfrey in an interview. "I started getting really paranoid, so I went one day into this church and I thought that the FBI and the SWAT teams were outside the church," says the singer, who says she started taking drugs — including crystal meth — in her teens. "I said, 'All right, if I go out and the FBI and the SWAT team's not out there, then it's the drugs and I'm stopping.'" There were in fact no law enforcement officials waiting for her, and she kept her promise to herself and sobered up. Fergie didn't, however, specify exactly when all of this happened.

What up, Playa?

Not far from Cancun (and with a little more class), it's Playa del Carmen

CASSANDRA GARRISON
Metro World News

One of the fastest developing vacation spots in Mexico, Playa del Carmen is the perfect destination for everything from family getaways to bachelor parties. Many American entrepreneurs have found Playa to be an ideal location for starting a business, making it a smart choice for those who aren't fluent in Spanish or don't want to sacrifice the comforts of home. With direct flights into nearby Cancun and temperatures remaining in the 20s, Playa del Carmen offers an easy, affordable escape from the increasingly chilly air.

Stay

There are countless all-inclusive resorts nestled along the beaches leading into the city, but for a more unique experience, opt for a downtown location for your home base like the Acanto Boutique Hotel (16 Norte bis, 1-888-331-2177). Sitting along a shaded cobblestone street, this hotel offers travellers spacious suites that lend themselves to longer stays. The private rooftop decks, equipped with barbecues and hot tubs, afford stunning beach views and breathtaking night skies. Acanto is close to Quinto Avenida (or Fifth Avenue, as it's known to tourists) and steps to Playa's many beach clubs, where you can lounge along the shore.

There's more to Casablanca than Humphrey Bogart

Often overlooked city. Morocco's art deco destination offers markets, beaches and some amazing architecture

Despite its romantic Hollywood associations, the sprawling ocean-side city of Casablanca is often overlooked by tourists heading for the beach or Morocco's more exotic cities like Marrakech. But this bustling city of four million, Morocco's commercial capital, is a vibrant mix of old and new with gorgeous art-deco architecture, traditional souqs (markets), one of the world's largest mosques and some picturesque beaches of its own.

The downtown

A small port city until the French chose it as the capital of its "protectorate" over Morocco in 1912, Casablanca blossomed under the attention of some of France's foremost architects who now had room to create outside the crowded cities of Europe. The nouvelle ville, as the downtown was known, was done in an art deco meets Middle Eastern style that is still stunning to behold, if you can look up long enough while dodging crowded sidewalks and zooming cars.

Luckily, the centre of it all, the elegant Mohammed V Boulevard, has been made a pedestrian street while a new tram system is installed. So until the sleek, French-built trams start running by the end of the year, you can stroll down the middle of the street, admiring the handsome buildings from the 1920s and 1930s.

The 'new' old city

Like most Moroccan cities, Casablanca has a "medina" or walled old city of winding alleys, except here it's smaller than most and quite run down, with most shops devoted to day-to-day items that are of little interest to the visitor. The French decided in the 1920s they would build a nicer medina and created the Habous neighbourhood just a 15-minute drive away, featuring elegant arches and white-washed buildings.

Habous is much cleaner and quieter than the downtown and is filled with handicrafts shops selling the traditional ceramics, leather slippers, embroidered caftans and metal lamps that tourists flood to Morocco to buy. Since most of the customers are locals as well, the quality tends to be higher than the tourist bazaars of Marrakech. There is also little of the hard sell that can blight a trip to the market in some of the other cities.

The mosque

In the medieval world, kings left their mark by building massive monuments in their name. A modern king, Hassan II of Morocco, who ruled the country for almost four decades until 1999, did the same. Amid the crashing waves of the Atlantic, he built a mosque so enormous it looms over the whole city, with a retractable roof and a laser on the minaret. Faced with pale stone and ornamented with colourful inlaid geometric patterns and traditional tiles, it can hold 25,000 worshippers inside. The vast esplanade around the mosque is often filled with families enjoying the open space and the quiet, and there's a great view of the sea. The mosque was built through mandatory contributions from all citizens. Unlike most mosques in Morocco, non-Muslims are allowed inside, but only on guided tours in the mornings and afternoons that run $15 a person.

The beach

Once on the city's coast, keep heading south toward the Ain Diab area, where the nicest beaches can be found. First there are the hotels and nightclubs of the wealthy Anfa district, but eventually they peter out and what's left is the corniche, a kind of boardwalk, with some great beaches pounded by Atlantic waves. Along the road there are popcorn and drink vendors, while on the beach itself young men offer pony or horse rides.

Little Crete village still cashing in on its rep as a destination for hippies

Matala. Explore the caves where Joni Mitchell stayed, or just enjoy the beach and laid-back vibe of this little fishing spot

In one of Matala's ancient caves Joni Mitchell had a bad night's sleep.

But which one?

The Canadian folksinging icon joined a wave of hippies from around the globe that washed ashore at this village on Crete's south coast in the late-1960s. A key attraction: the sandstone caves at the north end of the beach that provided free accommodation.

In published photos of the time, the hippies look as if they've occupied some bizarre prehistoric hotel as they lounge outside their cliffside dwellings.

These days swimsuit-clad tourists clamber up ledges on the cliff to explore the caves all day long. Access is free.

"The fact that Joni Mitchell was here, and all the hippies, I think it makes Matala an attraction for the tourists," says Luigi Sirianni, 32, one of several vendors who set up tables of handmade jewelry every day on the beach.

Swirly, psychedelic-style images are painted on roads and laneways. Gift shops do a brisk trade in flower-power stickers, and T-shirts adorned with peace symbols.

On a warm Saturday night in late-September, a barefoot musician sat cross-legged on a platform outside a cafe as he performed on electric sitar, harmonica and Apple laptop before an appreciative crowd.

"Business here is very good, and anyone who says it isn't is lying," says Voula Hristodoylaki, 52, who has owned a bookshop here for 30 years.

"It's not tragic everywhere in Greece like they say on TV," she says, referring to the country's depressed economy and weakened tourism industry.

A three-day festival with round-the-clock music drew over 50,000 visitors to Matala this past June. Inaugurated in 2011 as a hippy reunion, the event will be staged annually, organizers say.

Mitchell immortalized her stay here in her 1971 hit song Carey: she said her fingernails were filthy, she had beach tar on her feet and she missed her clean white linen and "fancy French cologne."

"The wind is in from Africa, last night I couldn't sleep," the song begins.

Well, no wonder. Try sleeping on hard rock in a dusty tomb.

INTER-AGENCY COLLABORATION IS KEY TO PUBLIC SAFETY, SECURITY

As more and more organizations exercise mandates related to public safety and security, co-ordination becomes increasingly important.

"Organizations and individuals are more and more specialized in particular disciplines and activities," says Tim Page, president of Canadian Association of Defence and Security Industries (CADSI). "While this strengthens our security capacity, it significantly increases the need for co-operation and communication. This event is designed to foster precisely the kind of collaboration needed."

The event is SecureTech 2012, a two-day conference and exhibition devoted to public safety and security at the Ottawa Convention Centre Oct. 30-31. Conference sessions will feature more than 50 leading experts from the public and private sectors and will focus on the latest strategies, best practices and policy insights. And dozens of companies will showcase new technologies and products in the centre's massive exhibition space.

The event is organized by CADSI, an association representing more than 860 companies in Canada's national defence and security sector — a sector that generates some $12 billion in revenues each year. Collaboration inspired the theme for the second-annual SecureTech: The Economics of Public Safety and National Security — Charting the Future Together. "We face a diversity of threats to public safety — terrorism, natural disasters, pandemics and accidents, for instance," Page says. "Preventing these events and responding swiftly and effectively, should they occur, depends entirely on how well we collaborate."

SecureTech 2012 will attract delegates from Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom — countries that share many of the same security-related challenges, including inter-agency collaboration. The conference will feature a series of panels on perimeter security and the Canada-U.S. Beyond the Border initiative.

Cyber security is a second major track of the conference. As networks evolve to the latest Internet protocol (IPv6 from IPv4), it is crucial that they integrate robust security measures.

"Organizations — both public and private — must commit to creating an environment that identifies and manages online threats as quickly and efficiently as possible," Page says. "Technology plays a big role in security, so integrating technologies properly is essential."

For more information about the conference, visit securetechcanada.ca/.

TWO MAIN SECURITY CHALLENGES

The following are excerpts from an exclusive interview with Tim Page, president of the Canadian Association of Defence and Security Industries (CADSI):

WHAT SECURITY CHALLENGES DO WE FACE?

I believe the two main challenges facing North America are perimeter and cyber security.

WHAT IS PERIMETER SECURITY?

Canada and the United States enjoy the largest and most enduring trade relationship in the world. Our international border is also the world's longest. Given these realities, it makes sense for us to work together against potential threats from the outside.

The challenge lies in managing security risks without unduly impeding the flow of trade and citizens across the border.

Many collaborative initiatives are already underway, including the detailed Canada-U.S. Beyond the Border agreement, that emphasize these two priorities.

CONTRIBUTED

WHAT SPECIFIC CHALLENGES DO WE FACE WITH RESPECT TO CYBER SECURITY?

In recent years, hackers have successfully attacked the computer networks of high-profile companies such as Visa, MasterCard and PayPal. Even the government of Canada and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) had their networks breached by hackers. At the same time, jurisdictions across North America rely more and more on automated SCADA (supervisory control and data acquisition) systems — linked through the Internet — to control critical public infrastructure, such as hydroelectrical grids, and water and sewage systems. This makes them more efficient, but leaves them more vulnerable to attack.

Earlier this year, U.S. Secretary of Defence Leon Panetta called on business and government to work together to prevent a potentially cataclysmic cyber attack. That country created a Cyber Command within its armed forces — essentially another branch of the military alongside the army, navy, marines, air force and coast guard. Public Safety Canada and Communications Service Establishment Canada take the lead in our country.

WHAT DOES THE FUTURE HOLD?

Technology will certainly play a growing role in security. The key is to integrate new technologies effectively. Biometrics, for instance, can help us identify individuals accurately at the border, facilitate travel and interdict inadmissible persons. At the same time, though, these technologies must be designed and deployed in ways that protect information that can be used to identify individuals.

Chorizo sausage steals spotlight in roasted chicken with root vegetables

Sometimes it's best not to over-think things — as in this basic roasted chicken, a take on a simple French classic.

Everything is just tossed into a pot, put in the oven and ignored until done. The recipe calls for a cast-iron Dutch oven. These really are indispensable for making all manner of roasts and stews.

And they are as happy on the burner as in the oven

(where, when covered, their heavy lids seal in moisture).

The most unique aspect of this recipe is the use of chorizo.

At its most basic, chorizo is a sausage made from chopped or ground pork and a ton of seasonings, often including garlic.

The flavours are deeply smoky and savoury, with varying degrees of heat.

Most are assertive and peppery, but not truly spicy.

Ingredients

- 1 tsp garlic powder
- 1 tsp kosher salt
- 3- to 4-lb whole chicken
- 1 tbsp olive oil
- 1 lb cooking chorizo, casing removed and discarded, meat finely chopped
- 4 sprigs fresh thyme
- 3 sprig fresh rosemary
- 1 medium yellow onion, quartered
- 12-oz bag baby carrots
- 1 lb new potatoes
- 1 lemon, quartered
- 6 cloves garlic, peeled but left whole
- Ground black pepper, to taste

1. Heat the oven to 350 F.

2. Combine the salt and garlic powder, then rub the mixture over and under the skin of the chicken. Set aside.

3. In a 5 1/2-quart (or larger) Dutch oven over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the chicken and sear for 5 minutes per side. Transfer the chicken to a plate.

4. Add the chorizo to the pan, then sauté for 4 minutes. Add the thyme and rosemary. Heat for 30 seconds.

5. Return the chicken to the pan, breast up. Arrange the onion, carrots, potatoes, lemon and garlic around the chicken, then place the lid on the pot. Transfer to the oven and roast for 45 minutes, or until the breast reads 160 F on an instant thermometer. Transfer the chicken to a platter and tent with foil.

6. Use a slotted spoon to transfer the vegetables and chorizo to a serving bowl. Cover to keep warm. Discard the lemon quarters and any herb stems.

7. Place the pot over medium heat and bring to a boil. Cook until reduced and thickened, about 3 to 4 minutes. Adjust seasoning with salt and pepper. Serve the sauce drizzled over the chicken. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Drink of the Week

Pinnacle Pumpkin Cider

It doesn't get more autumn than pumpkin pie and cider, and this drink combines the best of both worlds. It also adds a splash of lemon for a tart taste.

- 2 parts Pinnacle Pumpkin Pie vodka
- 1 part apple cider
- A splash of fresh lemon sour soda

Shake the vodka, apple cider and lemon sour with ice.

Sweet-and-sour-glazed carrots and green beans

1. In a large, deep skillet over medium heat, cook the bacon until crisp. Transfer the bacon to a paper towel-lined plate to drain, leaving the drippings in the pan. Once the bacon has cooled, crumble and set aside.

2. Return the skillet to the heat and add the carrots. Cook for 8 minutes, or until just starting to become tender.

3. Add the green beans, then cook for another 8 to 10 minutes, or until the vegetables are tender. Add the brown sugar, molasses and vinegar. Stir until a thick glaze forms. Cook until bubbling all over and slightly thick and sticky. Season with salt and black pepper.

Ingredients

- 4 oz bacon
- 1 lb carrots, peeled and cut into 1/4-inch thick rounds
- 1 lb green beans, trimmed and cut into 2-inch lengths
- 2 tbsp brown sugar
- 1 tbsp molasses
- 1 to 2 tbsp balsamic vinegar
- Kosher salt and ground black pepper

4. Serve topped with the crumbled bacon. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Education preparation.

The go-to guide for those gearing up for grad school

TalentEgg.ca

DO: Visit the school you are applying to and connect with faculty and prospective supervisors.

Having that face time with a member of the selection committee or a prospective supervisor can go a long way in helping you to get into a program. Many programs will not admit a student unless they already have a faculty member who is willing to supervise his or her research.

If you take the time to learn who is out there and connect with him or her about your area of research interest and he or she seems interested in your ideas and approach, then you are half-way, at least, to getting in.

Sentences that stand out

Write a statement of purpose that is personal and well thought out...

- ...not cliché or filled with broad sweeping statements and random flattery of the program to which you are applying. Know what your purpose is? Explain who you are, what you want and why you want it from where you are applying.
- Follow the department's directions to a tee. Re-write, give drafts to your family, friends, etc. Make it punchy, personal and free of typos.

Do apply early: Programs get flooded with late applicants who are making sudden life changes or who have just received a rejection letter from law school, med school, dentistry school, etc. ISTOCK

Do: Take time before you start the application process to reflect on what you would like to research while in grad school.

The most successful applicants are those who have a clear research interest — one that is innovative or takes a new approach to an old question. You need to know how you want to conduct your research, what resources you intend to use, what the burning question is that you want to address and why it is important. I know it is difficult at this point in time to know the answers to all of this, but the closer you can get, the better.

Take time to chat with your current professors and to get their insights on your research. This is also the sort of thing that you can connect with prospective supervisors on. They can direct you to other resources that may be of use to you.

Don't: Apply to a whole bunch of programs hoping that one has got to work out.

You need to learn the key details of a program, including faculty research interests and specific courses offered, before you apply. It's better to take the time and identify the programs that are best suited to you, tailor your application to that program and make connections with people there.

Take the time to do your research and know who the school's faculty members are and what they are known for, and play to those strengths in your application.

Don't: Hand in an application that is unclear, disorganized, or contains spelling or grammatical mistakes.

This will give the impression that you are not clear about your purpose or do not take the application seriously.

Don't: Overdo the flattery.

A number of admissions committee chairs have cited distaste for applications that include insincere flattery, such as praising the program in an obsequious manner. Other chairs added inappropriate name-dropping or blaming others for a poor academic record as potential kisses of death.

Chart and progress. How to pick between a pile of potential programs

Applying to graduate programs can be time consuming and expensive, so it might not be feasible to apply to every program that interests you.

Yet, with so many options for graduate study, it can be difficult to narrow down your options.

The following are some strategies for your hunt for the perfect graduate program:

Getting organized

If you are comparing several programs, summarize the key information about each program and keep it in a central location. In a chart on my computer, I record the following information about each program:

- University and program
- Location (which can have implications for funding options whether you stay home or go abroad)
- Type of program (e.g., coursework, major research paper, thesis)
- Duration of the program
- Application deadline
- Costs (including tuition, living expenses and other fees)
- Admission requirements (e.g., minimum GPA, undergraduate courses, etc.)
- Required application materials (including the number of reference letters, writing samples, research statement, CV, completion of standardized tests, etc.)
- Additional notes (e.g., faculty supervisors in the department, co-op options, etc.)

Rank the programs

With all of this information in one place, I can more easily rank the programs. For example, I can look under the

'admission requirements' column of my chart and eliminate programs that require extensive professional experience in the field. I add these to the chart, though, so that I can keep them in mind for the future. The chart also allows me to compare the costs of the programs more easily.

Reorganize the chart by deadline

Once you narrow down your options (based on the criteria that are most important to you), you can reorganize the chart by deadline so that you can start by working on applications that are due first. When asking for references, you can refer to the 'application materials' column to see how many references you need and from whom.

It is also worth checking the programs' websites again to make sure that deadlines or other important information has not changed.

Over a year ago, I bookmarked the website of a program to which I wanted to apply but, when I revisited the site a few months ago, I discovered that the program no longer exists!

A similar chart can help you organize your funding options. You might include some similar columns (such as deadline) and some other information, such as eligibility requirements and the value of the award/scholarship/grant.

Is it the perfect place for your pursuit?

Education or the elements? The program sounds great, but what about its whereabouts?

DANIELLE LORENZ
Talentegg.ca

You've been doing your research to apply to grad schools — looking at the school, the program, the faculty, its facilities and services, its reputation and its academic requirements.

However, one thing you must also do your research on is the location of your program.

Many students tend not to consider how much living in a certain city will cost, and that should be almost as important as the school itself, since those costs are very much linked together. Since you will be spending anywhere between 12 and 24 months as a full-time student at these schools, you need to consider the city the school is located in as well.

Climate

Let's say you abhor all things snowy and cold. Even though the University of Alberta and the University of Manitoba have programs that suit your research interests, how well are you going to be able to cope with temperatures that can be as low as (and sometimes even colder than) -40C?

Similarly, if you detest rain, the University of British Columbia or McMaster University won't be good choices for you.

Cost of living

Although the climate and temperature can have a lot to do with how you will enjoy the city, you need to also examine the cost of living.

Because some locales are more isolated or have shorter growing seasons, groceries can be much more expensive in some areas over others. However, in smaller towns, there is often less variety and it can be more difficult for you to purchase specialty foods.

In other cities, the climate is great, or it is close to major financial or cultural centres, so the cost of living there is much greater than other places within Canada.

Transportation

En route to education

- Something else to consider is the cost of transportation within different cities: do you have a transit pass included in your tuition, or do you need to pay for a monthly pass? Do you have a car and do you need to pay for gas, parking and maintenance?

- Similarly, if you live in a large city, car insurance has a tendency to cost more than if you were in a smaller community.

Moving costs

One of the last things you should consider is how much it will cost you to move to this new city. If you are moving cross-country, the cost of renting a vehicle to bring all of your stuff can be upwards of $10,000 or more. This can include the rental of a truck/trailer, insurance, a fee per kilometre you drive, the cost of gas, the fees issued by the rental company to drive their vehicle back, as well as buying food and renting a hotel room.

If you opt to bring only the essentials with you, furnishing an apartment can be expensive as well. If you only plan to live in that city for the length of your program, perhaps it's more worthwhile to live in residence for some of the time.

However, Zac Spicer, a PhD student in political science at Western University in London, Ont., makes a great point when it comes to accessing what the location of your prospective school may be: "Location should be the last consideration of anyone applying to grad school, but it does obviously play a role in deciding where to go. ... I would caution anyone from letting this factor be the deciding one. Look at what the school offers, then consider the location."

No business in show business?

Ashley Proulx
Graduate
Theatre Arts
Algonquin College

When I was in school, I was getting a lot of volunteer work as assistant stage manager and other production positions in theatre. That is kind of my dream job — to work anywhere in theatre. It was great, however, as a volunteer, I wasn't making any money from.

To pay the bills I worked in retail. That was fine, but I seem to have really bad luck because everywhere I've worked for so far either closed shop or went bankrupt. It's very hard to maintain contacts to these businesses because when it comes time to ask for references, they can't be reached. So I have to use my theatre references, but of course that probably seems odd to someone in retail or any other job because to them, it seems like I didn't get along with my peers in non-related theatre work.

I even worked with my family's company that had been in business for 40 years until that too went under. So I had to go find another job. And have I mentioned that I have the worst luck with jobs? People I work for in theatre say they love to have me around on a project because I am a trooper. Easy to say, maybe, because they don't pay me, but I know they wouldn't say it if it wasn't true.

I have been applying to so many full-time positions without much luck. I've been on second and even third interviews, and nothing. So with years and years of getting nothing, it's starting to take a toll on my self-esteem. All I want is a job to pay my bills so I can do something I love to do, or maybe even go back to school to further my career, but without knowing how I am going to make money, my future seems dim.

I used to be a very happy go-lucky person. I still act like it in my job, but now I just want to get out of this situation so I can be my real happy self again.

My recommendations for employers, career centres or schools

Just because someone's goals are not the goals of your company doesn't mean they won't make great employees. I worked for two years at our family's photography printing business. Never cared for photography, but I loved the people I worked for and the clients who came in because those employees were rooting for me to get my dream job. That made me work harder for my family's company.

My advice for students and recent grads

Don't get a theatre arts degree. If you do, at least go back to school again to do art administration or technical design as a backup.

Tigers ace Justin Verlander delivers during Game 3 of the ALCS against the New York Yankees in Detroit on Oct. 16. GREGORY SHAMUS/GETTY IMAGES FILE

Verlander returns to Series on October roll

Tigers' best. Detroit ace looks to put behind early career disappointments on World Series stage

Justin Verlander's introduction to post-season baseball six years ago left him dazzled and exhausted.

Worn down toward the end of his rookie season, he made his playoff debut at Yankee Stadium. A couple weeks later, he was on the mound for Game 1 of the World Series.

"It was such a whirlwind, really, that entire season. I remember standing on the mound in old Yankee Stadium ... and growing up as a kid you see all of the post-season games and all of the magic that had happened in that stadium, and it was kind of a surreal moment for me," the Detroit ace said.

"I feel like I have pitched in Second chance in San Francisco

Barry Zito will start the World Series opener for the San Francisco Giants Wednesday night.

- Zito's stellar outing in a 5-0 win on Friday in Game 5 of the NL championship series helped San Francisco rally from a 3-1 series deficit against the St. Louis Cardinals.

- The Giants have won Zito's last 13 starts dating to Aug. 7. The $126-million pitcher was left off all three rounds of the 2010 post-season when San Francisco won the World Series.

big games now and understand what my body's going to be going through and what my mind is going to be going through and I am able to rein it in a little more and use it more to my advantage."

Verlander is now 29 and he returns to the Fall Classic a more mature pitcher. In three playoff starts against Oakland and the New York Yankees, he's allowed all of two runs going into Wednesday night's opening game at San Francisco.

"He's learned to handle these situations. He's learned how to stay pretty calm throughout the game in these big-game situations," manager Jim Leyland said.

The six-foot-five right-hander makes pitching look effortless, settling into a groove early without necessarily reaching back for his triple-digit fastball until the later innings.

Verlander went 24-5 in 2011, sweeping the AL MVP and Cy Young awards. Although he won only 17 games this year, his ERA was still a sparkling 2.64.

Of course, in 2006, Verlander started Game 1 of the World Series, and the Tigers lost to St. Louis 7-2. Those travails are all but forgotten now.

On Wednesday night, Verlander will go back to work with his usual business-like attitude and tireless approach. He still won't take anything for granted. Verlander's well aware that no matter how talented you are, anything can happen in October.

"Every game in the post-season is a must-win," Verlander said. "In the post-season we have seen some crazy things happen in this game. Just try to win every single game one inning at a time."

Distrust continues to creep into the NHL's stalled labour negotiations.

The NHL Players' Association was questioning the league's motives after news surfaced Tuesday that team owners and general managers were given 48 hours last week to speak with players about the NHL's latest contract offer.

"Most owners are not allowed to attend bargaining meetings," said Steve Fehr, the NHLPA's special counsel. "No owners are allowed to speak to the media about the bargaining. It is interesting that they are secretly unleashed to talk to the players about the

In a lengthy internal memo obtained by The Canadian Press, the NHL stated clearly that the discussions had to be limited to the contents of the proposal. It also provided examples of questions that shouldn't be asked of players and noted that any violation would be subject to NHL bylaw 17.17, which gives commissioner Gary Bettman the power to levy fines up to $250,000.

Green option

For buyers with a green streak, the Malibu Eco features a 182-horse 2.4-litre four-cylinder and a special 15-horsepower electric motor/generator that adds “eAssist” via a belt drive during acceleration and passing. Called a “mild hybrid” because the Malibu Eco cannot run on electric power alone.

The trunk is very spacious

- Engines (hp): 2.5l DOHC I4 (197), 2.0l DOHC I4 (259), 2.4l DOHC I4 with 15kw motor (182, net)

Interior styling

Cabin styling, which was the previous Malibu’s strong suit, hasn’t veered off course for 2013. The dual cockpit-style seating arrangement, with its wrap-around dashboard and centre stack, returns in roughly the same format, but the controls and switches are laid out in a more straightforward fashion.

Design

On the outside, the Malibu’s athletic lines reveal a more prominent grille and Camaro-influenced taillights at the opposite end. The range-topping LTZ is upgraded with brighter high-intensity discharge (HID) headlights and faster-acting light-emitting diode (LED) taillights.

Review. It’s really three separate cars under the same banner

MALCOLM GUNN

Wheelbase Media

To be a mid-sized sedan in this day and age means that you actually have to be a lot more than just a mid-sized sedan.

You have to have a super-attractive entry price. You also have to show that you like clean air, trees and fluffy rabbits romping in fields. And, you have to be sporty enough for moms and dads who gave up their two-door cars when the stork came calling. But, since you can’t really put all of that together in one car, the Malibu — and others in this class — have separate models to take care of a broad buyer base.

Once considered somewhat plain and uninspiring in a rental-fleet sort of way, the Malibu regained its groove for the 2008 model year with sharp styling, thoughtfully designed interior appointments and competent road manners. The reviews bordered on gushing, sales spiked and the mid-size Chevy was walking proud again. The new 2013 Malibu has been repurposed for new challenges and increased sedan-class competitiveness. From top to bottom it’s a completely different car, starting with a more rigid platform based on the Opel Insignia (also part of GM).

Exterior dimensions are closely aligned with the outgoing Malibu, except for about 11.5 centimetres of shrinkage between the front and rear wheels. Despite this deficit, most key passenger- and cargo-area measurements, except legroom, have actually increased. The speedometer and tachometer gauge pods are located in what are clearly Chevrolet Camaro-inspired housings. As with other recently launched GM sedans, the Malibu comes with 10 standard airbags, including front-knee inflatables.

In short, the 2013 Malibu offers a variety of models to a diverse group of buyers. Welcome to the modern mid-size sedan.

The Malibu’s taillight influence is undeniable. All models are front-wheel drive and have some sort of four-cylinder propulsion.

The gauge layout will likely remind you of the Chevrolet Camaro.

Wisely spend your way around car care this fall with these 10 products

Take a load off. With a vehicle maintenance investment this season you could have more time to enjoy life

Wheelbase Media

Car "care" is not a four-letter word.

In fact, like many things in life, you can spend your way around it. When it comes to your vehicle, a dollar spent on the right products often equals money saved down the road on repairs, resale value and elbow grease.

The following products were chosen for this reason. Wheelbase Media is not affiliated in any way with the following companies or their products.

They have been selected as a sample of the thousands of products out there that are designed to, among other things, give more time behind the wheel.

No. 1: Defend against door dings

Simply separate the two halves and stick them to the front and rear doors (thanks to built-in magnets) of your vehicle to provide a three-inch thick protective bumper.

Each set consists of a pair of 75-centimetre-long shock-absorbing tubes covered in soft, scratch-proof, weather-resistant polyester. Bound together by a heavy-duty cable, they're held by a ball at the end of the steel security cable that you simply toss into the vehicle before closing and locking the doors. doordefender.com

No. 2: Cap the problem

There are a number of valve-stem caps on the market that show you when tire pressure is low.

The Air Alert Valve Cap from Automotive Upgrade Technologies actually flashes for up to three weeks when the pressure drops by four p.s.i., a situation that needs your immediate attention. The list price is about $40 US. Visit automotiveupgrade.com.

No. 3: The cart of all carts

OK, this item might not be for everyone, but if you're deadly serious about keeping your expensive ride(s) as clean and spotless as possible, then you'll definitely want to look into a Rebel Cart.

Each of the company's twin-compartment rolling steel carts can store plenty of solvents, waxes and assorted cleaning supplies. There's also a portable air compressor (including an air hose and air gun) and a Metro-brand 4.0-horsepower portable vacuum cleaner.

Colour choices include red, white, matte black, gloss black and silver. Rebel Carts sell for $2,000 US and through rebelcarts.com.

No. 4: "Carrying" a spare

Kurgo makes storing and moving your spare sets of tires a little easier (and cleaner) because of its one-size-fits-all bags with handles.

The Seasonal Tire Tote is intended to keep brake dust and other road filth off your clothes as well as out of the trunk or cargo compartment of your vehicle. Made from polyester and machine-washable. Kurgo.com.

No. 5: Dressed with less mess

One coat of More Shine on a clean tire makes it look black, while a second helping provides a glossy shine. There's no dripping liquid, no sponges and a no wiping needed.

The Stoner company says the shine will last for weeks.

More Shine is claimed to provide UV protection from the sun, it won't "brown" the tires and it won't harm the finish on your wheels. More-shine.com.

No. 6: Smell? What smell?

Each one-kilogram bag contains porous volcanic rock with zeolite, which is a naturally forming mineral with the ability to absorb all kinds of smells, from food (regurgitated and otherwise) to oil and gasoline fumes.

All that's required to maintain the product's effectiveness is to occasionally place the bag in direct sunlight for six to eight hours. Stinky-Be-Gone sells for $15 US (or three bags for $40 US) from griotsgarage.com.

No. 7: Clean your cleaning cloths

The maker of WHOOSH! claims that its biodegradable detergent will make your microfibre towels turn out soft and fluffy as new, which is what you need to get back to work on your vehicle.

The product's formulation, which includes water softeners, attacks grease, dirt, oils, wax, brake dust and other stains without the use of bleach or other harmful chemicals.

A 950-millilitre bottle sells for about $20 US and is available from the manufacturer at whooshinc.com.

No. 8: Keep your cool

AC Pro, made by IDQ Inc., can actually stop a leak and replenish the system with refrigerant, all from a single can.

In addition, the manufacturer claims AC Pro's special formula contains the most effective coolant on the market. Each can of AC Pro includes a built-in pressure gauge, extra-long hose and special "snap lock" coupler. AC Pro retails for about $50 US and is available from a number of auto-supply and department stores.

Watch the video demo and obtain purchasing info at acprocold.com.

No. 9: Dents be gone

The Bondo Small Dent Repair Kit comes with all the necessary items to help give a professional finish to small body-work jobs.

Each kit comes with six ounces of lightweight body filler, glaze, a spreader, a mixer and one sheet each of 80, 180 and 320-grit sandpaper that you progressively use to make the repair smoother. Admittedly the process is not for the faint of heart, but once the job is completed, you're ready to prime and paint.

Available at amazon.com for $15-$18 US. You can also check out the complete line of 3M/Bondo car care products at 3Mcarcare.com.

No. 10: What's your ratchet?

If you work on cars, either as a hobby or to pay the bills, you'll appreciate a set of Zyklop ratchets from Wera.

Their unique rotating-mass design allows you to easily spin the socket up to three times more quickly (according to the manufacturer) than a standard ratchet.

Although tackling bolts is the Zyklop's primary function, it can also be used as a reversible screwdriver when fitted with one of a number of different bits.

Wera makes Zyklop ratchet sets from 18 to 43 pieces with prices beginning in the $80 US range for the basic set through amazon.com. For more info, you can also check out us.wera.de.

2005 to 2007 Honda Accord Hybrid

Drive@metronews.ca

Pressing towards greater environmental sensibility, Honda launched a hybrid variant of their popular Accord sedan for the 2005 model year. The relatively short-lived model lasted through till 2007 and was never a sales success — though it furthered the automaker's reputation in the hybrid vehicle scene.

Look for an Accord Hybrid with heated leather seats, a navigation system, premium audio, remote entry, steering-wheel mounted audio controls and all of the other toys available in loaded-up Accord models.

Common issues

Check for a vibration or "tone" emitted from the Accord Hybrid's engine compartment, which is likely caused by a malfunction in the "Active Noise Cancellation" circuitry. When this system doesn't work properly, the sound is noticeable as cylinders are deactivated. If it's working, drivers shouldn't hear it.

Another possible issue may be related to the transmission. Some drivers report a clunking, surging or vibration apparent when shifting gears. If the Accord Hybrid you're considering doesn't feel like it's shifting properly, be double sure to have it checked out.

ALL PHOTOS HANDOUT

Engine

By adding their Integrated Motor Assist (IMA) system to the Accord's V6 powerplant, output climbed from the standard 240 horsepower to 255.

What owners dislike

Complaints include seat comfort, some cheap interior trim pieces and lower-than-expected handling performance due to the Accord Hybrid's fuel-saving tires.

What owners like

Owners gravitated initially toward the model because of its promise of elevated performance and good real-world mileage. Honda's reliability and reputation for safety and a refined driving experience attracted shoppers, too.

Verdict

Shop carefully, test-drive thoroughly, and try to find a model that's familiar to the selling Honda dealer. A full checkup is mandatory, and an extended warranty that covers the hybrid drivetrain components isn't a bad idea either.

Accord's engine has 255 horsepower

Be wary of how winter taxes your fuel intake

Part of being a smart, safe, fuel-efficient driver includes knowing how to achieve good results even in the worst weather. Did you know, for example, that the combined effects of various conditions can increase fuel consumption more in winter than summer? While it may sound obscure, when you break it down it really makes sense.

- Drivers should expect higher fuel consumption in cold weather. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) found that a drop in temperature from 24 C to 7 C increased fuel consumption in urban commutes by 12 to 28 per cent.

- Aerodynamic resistance is greater in winter. Cold, dry winter air is about 12 per cent denser than warm, humid summer air, increasing highway fuel consumption by about 1.3 per cent in winter. The average wind speed is also higher in winter, which contributes to increased aerodynamic resistance and fuel consumption.

- Winter roads create difficult driving conditions. Roads tend to be rougher in the winter, with increased asphalt deterioration and a mix of snow, ice, slush, water, salt, gravel, and sand. The engine works harder to offset the increased rolling resistance, as the tires must push aside heavy snow and road cover. The snow and ice also increase wheel slippage, which results in higher fuel consumption. U.S. EPA data shows that fuel consumption can increase from seven to 35 per cent as a result of poor road conditions, depending on the surface type and snow load.

- Winter gas normally has lower energy density. Gasoline composition is seasonally and geographically adjusted based on historical temperature data. A litre of winter gas has less energy than a litre of summer gas, typically in the range of 1.5 to three per cent. Diesel fuel is similarly affected.

- Winter driving taxes the vehicle's electrical system. Except for using air conditioning on hot summer days, a vehicle's electrical loads are normally higher in cold weather due to greater demand from heating, defrosting, heated seats, heated mirrors and increased use of the windshield wipers and washer pump. The energy for these electrical loads is provided by the vehicle's electrical system, which obtains power from the engine.

Child seats: One size doesn't fit all

Driving Force.

Don't take risks, and be informed when it comes to seating your kid

JILL
drive@metronews.ca

You know that your child should always be in the proper safety seat at all times in a vehicle. But you may not be aware of changing recommendations for the type of seat they use.

The transition through various types of seats depends more on a child's development than age or weight, according to Barbara Baines, child passenger safety advocate for Britax.

"Britax recommends rear-facing as long as possible," she says.

"It's a safer way to travel, because during a frontal collision, the force of the collision is absorbed through the back of the seat, and there is no energy or force being put on the weaker front parts of the body."

The federal government sets standards for the seats themselves, but provinces set laws for their use.

The weight and age of children in rearward-facing seats is often legislated at 20 to 22 pounds, or a minimum of one year.

Baines recommends using the child's development instead and keeping them rearward-facing until they can walk unassisted.

"Many children are bigger than in the past, and that's why we've brought

Things to note

- Better safe than sorry. Always register your seat with the manufacturer when you buy it, so you can be alerted to any product recalls.
- Support is crucial. Make sure any seat sufficiently cushions the child's head and prevents excessive head and neck movement in a crash.

Some perspective

"Also, you don't know if that seat has ever been in a collision, been mistreated, or if there's a recall on it. It's not worthwhile saving money when it's your child's safety at stake"

Barbara Baines, Child Passenger Safety advocate for Britax

On the dangers of buying a second-hand car seat for a baby or child cushion.

Until this is possible, the child should remain in a seat with a five-point harness. All child seats should be replaced after their expiration date or if they've been in a crash, even if the seat was empty at the time. Baines cautions about buying used seats.

"It's illegal to sell second-hand seats unless they meet the Transport Canada safety standards as of January 2012," she says.

"Also, you don't know if that seat has ever been in a collision, been mistreated, or if there's a recall on it. It's not worthwhile saving money when it's your child's safety at stake."
